ACHURI

BRITISH SHORTHAIRES

Are you interested in showing and breeding van-patterned British Shorthairs? Most of these attractive cats are produced by mating a male British bi-colour or British van to a female British bi-colour, tri-colour or British van. Occasionally a van will appear in a litter where one parent is a self. Because of the variety of partners that can be used, the British van has a wider gene pool available than many experimental breeds.

There are a few golden rules for breeding them:

- Use only British Shorthairs.
- Do not use any white, pointed or tabby cats, as vans must be any self colour or colours on a clear white background.

Now that many British vans have won merits, we hope the breed may soon progress to Intermediate level.

At stud, our cream and white blood type A boys:

Achuri Vanguard (31fw), litter brother to Gr. Ch. Achuri Homeguard.
Vanguard has sired more merit winning vans than any other cat.

Achuri Vanowen (31fw; 5 Merits)
Young proven son of Vanguard.

Kittens expected August, by Vanowen to Achuri Vanunique.
